GEN. ROGER WILLIAMS TO INVADE TRIGG CO.

Gov. Willson to Carry the War Into Africa.

WHOLESALE ARRESTS ARE PROBABLE

News came from Frankfort yesterday that Trigg county is to be occupied at once by a strong military force under Gen. Roger Williams, who will make his headquarters at Cadiz.

"An effort will be made to do in Trigg county what has been done in Calloway county, and it is believed by the civil authorities that with the aid of the soldiers they can convict many of the men who have been taking part in the raids by the night riders.

Ever since the tobacco troubles began in Western Kentucky there has been trouble in Trigg county, and the night riders have had things their own way there. The first act of the night riders which attracted National attention to them was the burning of the two stemmeries at Princeton, Dec. 1, 1906. The band which burned these stemmeries came from Trigg county mainly, it was charged. The band which raided Hopkinsville also Dec. 6, 1907, was pursued into Trigg county and it was believed that Trigg was the hotbed of the troubles. It was charged that a nest of night riders lived in Trigg county, and that this is the real seat of their power.

Now the State Government, backed by the military, is to go to Trigg county, the very seat of the disturbances, and try to break up the band which is called the parent organization of Western Kentucky. It is believed by the Governor that if the band in Trigg county can be broken up the night rider question will be settled at once and for all and everything will be peaceful in Western Kentucky.

What will be done when the troops get to Trigg county is a secret yet and will not be known until the county is actually occupied. The soldiers will be scattered over the whole county and will be well able to take care of themselves in a fight if the night riders should show force. It is said that the civil authorities have evidence enough to convict many men in Trigg county and that there will be a general scattering of the citizens of that county when the investigation begins. The authorities here will not talk about what they are going to do in Trigg county, but they expect to break up the night rider organization and tear it up from the ground, stem, root and all."

This dispatch in yesterday's papers has created a sensation. It has been stated here that not fewer than 24 men, or four companies of 20 men and a captain each, from Trigg and 42 men from Caldwell took part in the raid on Hopkinsville and that the officers have practically the complete list. Many of the men took part in raids on Princeton, Eddyville, Dawson and even Russellville. The names of suspected parties who went through this city on the night of the Russellville raid have been known since Jan. 3. When all of the warrants against Trigg and Caldwell county night riders are served there will be some eye-openers. Maj. Albrecht and Maj. E. B. Bassett left this city yesterday morning, presum-

CHAPTER SEVENTEEN

LEOPOLD thought it rather more than possible that by the time of his return the chancellor would be as anxious to wriggle out of his proposal to visit the prince's hunting lodge as he had been to have it accepted a few hours before.

"He shan't escape his humiliation, though," the emperor told himself. "He shall go, and he shall beg forgiveness for his suspicious in sackcloth and ashes. Nothing else can satisfy me now."

Thinking thus, Leopold looked sharply from the window as his special allowed into the central station at Kronburg along the track which had been kept clear for its arrival. No other train was due at the moment; therefore few persons were on the platform, and a figure in a long gray coat, with its face shadowed by a slouch hat, was conspicuous.

The emperor had expected to see that figure, but vaguely he wished there were not so much brusqueness and self-confidence in the set of the massive head and shoulders. The young man believed absolutely in his love, but he would have been gratified to detect something of depression in the one's air which he might translate as a foreknowledge of failure.

"I hope your majesty will forgive the liberty I have taken in coming to the station without a distinct invitation to do so," he said, as he stepped first words as he met the emperor. "Knowing that you would almost certainly arrive by special train, I came down from my house some time ago, that I might be on hand without fail when you arrived to place my electric carriage at your service. I thought it probable that you would not have sent to the palace and therefore it might save you some slight inconvenience if I were on the spot. If you will honor my poor convenience!"

"Don't let us discuss our business for explanations or compliments, if you please, chancellor," the emperor cut him short brusquely. "I counted on your being here with your carriage. Now for the hunting lodge in the woods."

As he spoke his eyes were on the old man's face, which he hoped to see all or change, but there was no visible sign of discomfiture, and Von Breitenstein made no attempt to excuse himself from making the proposed visit. Evidently nothing had happened during the hours since the message by telephone to summon the chancellor's mind.

go with you there, as I always have been and always shall be ready to serve you when I am needed."

It was on Leopold's tongue to say that it would be well if his chancellor's readiness could be confined to those occasions when it was needed, but he shut his lips upon the words and walked by the old man's side in frozen silence.

The carriage was waiting just outside the station, and the moment the two men were seated the chauffeur started noiselessly and swiftly.

Both windows were closed to keep out the chill of the night air, but soon Leopold impatiently lowered one, forgetting the chancellor's old fashioned hatred of drafts, and stared into the night. Already they were approaching the outskirts of the great town, and, flying past the dark warehouses and factories of the neighborhood, they sped toward the open country.

The weather, still warm the evening before—that evening of moonlight not to be forgotten—had turned cold with morning, and tonight there was a pungent scent of drying leaves in the air. It smote Leopold in the face with the wind of motion, and it seemed to him the essential perfume of sadness. Never again would he inhale that fragrance of the falling year without recalling this hour.

He was half mad with impatience to reach the end of the journey and confront the chancellor once for all, yet as the swift electric carriage spun smoothly along the white road and landmark after landmark vanished behind tree branches leaved with stars something within him would at last have stayed the flying moments had that been possible. He burned to ask questions of Von Breitenstein, yet would have died rather than utter them.

It was a relief to the emperor when after a long silence his companion spoke, though relief which carried with it a prick of resentment. Even the chancellor had no right to speak first without permission from his sovereign.

"Forgive me, your majesty," the old man said. "Your anger is hard to bear, yet I bear it uncomplainingly because of my confidence that the reward is not far off. I look for it no further in the future than tonight."

"I, too, believe that you won't miss your reward," returned the emperor sharply.

"I shall have it, I am sure, not only in your majesty's forgiveness, but in your thanks."

"I'll forgive you when you've asked my pardon for your suspicious and when you've found Miss Mowbray for me."

"I have already found her and am taking you to her now."

"You are accustomed to believe in your own story? You believe that this sweet and beautiful young girl is a fast actress, a schemer, a friend of your notoriously gallant friend and willing to risk her reputation by paying a visit unchaperoned to him at his hunting lodge in the woods? You are, after all, a very poor judge of character if you dream that we shall see her there."

"I shall see her, your majesty, and you will see her too, the maidness you call love has blinded the eyes of your body as well as the eyes of your mind. That she is now at the lodge I know, for the prince assured me with his own lips that she had promised to motor out alone with him and dine."

"You mean he told you that his friend the actress had promised. I'll make my life even if he didn't dare say Miss Mowbray."

"He said 'Miss Brett, the actress,' is true, but when he called upon her at her hotel, where he and I met to discuss a matter which is no secret to your majesty, he asked for Miss Mowbray. And the message that came down I heard. It was that Miss Mowbray would be delighted to see his royal highness. This left no doubt in my mind that after giving out that she would leave today the lady had remained in Kronburg for the express purpose of meeting her dear friend the prince, the handiwork and best dressed young man in Europe—after your majesty, of course. And it was quite natural for her to hope that, as she was supposed to be gone and yet were following her, this evening's escapade would never be discovered."

"Please, spare me your deductions, chancellor," said the emperor curiously, "and pray understand now, if you have not understood before, that I am with you in this expedition not to prove you right, but wrong, and now you can say will convince me that the prince's actress and Miss Mowbray are one. If we find a woman at the hunting lodge let me be the lady to kiss unless she has been kidnapped."

Thus snubbed by the young man whom he had held in his arms, an imperious as well as an imperial infant, the old statesman sought sanctuary in silence. But he had said that which had been in his mind to say, and he was satisfied. Meekness was not his metier, yet he could play the part of the faithful servant, humbly loyal through injustice and misunderstanding, and he played it now, because he knew it to be the one effective role.

He sat beside the emperor with bowed head and stooping shoulders which suggested the weakness of old age, his hands clasped before him, and from time to time he sighed patiently.

As they glided under the dark arch of the Buchenwald Leopold spoke again.

"You have led me to suppose that our call at the hunting lodge will be a surprise visit to the prince. That is the case, isn't it?"

Count von Breitenstein would have preferred that the question had not been asked. He had intended to convey the impression which the emperor had received, but he had not clothed it in actual statement. Luckily the prince was as clever as he was good looking, and he could be trusted as an actor; otherwise the old man would have been still more reluctant to commit himself.

"Were our visit expected we should not be likely to find the lady," said he. The prince and I are on such friendly terms, your majesty, that he didn't mind confessing he was to have a pretty actress as his guest. He also answered a few questions I asked concerning her freely and frankly, for to do so he had to tell me only what the world knows. How could he dream that the flirtations or the visits of a Miss Jenny Brett could be of the slightest importance to the emperor of Rhaetia? Had he guessed, however, that the entertainment he meant to offer might be interrupted naturally by her would have taken some means to protect her from annoyance."

"This night's work will give him cause to pick a private quarrel with me if he likes," said the emperor, convinced of the chancellor's good faith.

"I don't think he will choose, your majesty. You are in a mood to be glad if he did, I fear. But, no, I need not fear. You will always remember Rhaetia."

few hours ago.

"Even then I knew that when the real test should be applied your majesty's cool head would triumph over the hot impulse of youth. But, see, we're passing through the village of Inselden, fast asleep already, every window dark. In six or seven minutes at this speed we shall be at the lodge." The emperor laughed shortly. "And another seven minutes to your distaste and we shall be out of the lodge again, with Chancellor von Breistein a sadder and a wiser man than he went in."

Meekness was once more the part for the old man to play, and, raising his hands, palm upward, in a gesture of generous indulgence for his young sovereign, he denied himself the pleasure of retort.

The hunting lodge in the wood, now the property of the chancellor's accommodating young friend, had until recently belonged to a Rhaetian semi-royal prince who had been compelled by lack of sympathy among his creditors to sell something and had promptly sold the thing he cared for least. The present owner was a keen sportsman and, though he came seldom to the place, had spent a good deal of money in repairing the quaint rustic house.

Years had passed since the emperor had done more than pass the lodge gates, and now the outlines of the low rambling structure looked strange to him silhouetted against a spangled sky. He was glad of this, for he had spent some joyous days here as a boy, and he wished to separate the old impressions and the new.

Two tall chimneys stood up like the pricked ears of some alert crouching animal. The path to the lodge gleamed white and straight in the darkness as a parting in the rough black hair of a giant. The trees whispered gossip to each other in the wind, and it seemed to Leopold that they were evil things, telling lies and standing his love. He hated them and their rustling, which once he had loved; he hated the yellow eyes of the animal with the pricked ears, glittering eyes which were lighted windows; he hated the young prince who owned the place, and he would have hated the chancellor more than all that had not the old man limped as he walked up the path, showing how heavy was the burden of his years as he had never shown it to his emperor before.

The path led to a hooded entrance, and, ascending the two stone steps, the chancellor lifted the mailed glove which did duty as a knocker. Twice he brought it down on the oak panel underneath, and the sound of metal smiting against wood went echoing through the house with an effect of emptiness and desolation.

Nobody came to answer the summons, and Leopold smiled in the darkness. He thought it likely that even the prince was not at home. A practical joke had been played on the chancellor.

Again the mailed fist struck the panel. An echo alone replied. Count von Breistein began to be alarmed for the success of his plan. He thanked the night which hid from the keen eyes of the emperor-cynical now, no doubt, the telltale vein beating hard in his forehead.

"Don't you think, chancellor, that after all, you'd better try to take me to some more probable as well as more suitable place to look for Miss Mowbray?" he suggested, with a drawl intended to be as aggravating as it actually was. "There doesn't appear to be any one about. Even the caretakers are out courting perhaps."

"But listen, your majesty," said Von Breistein when he knocked again.

Leopold didn't listen and heard the ring of a heel on a floor of stone or marble.

Once and a while I would feel a heavy, dull aching across the small of my back, always more severe after an over exertion. ARTHUR GOEBEL TO WILLSON:

"I Ask You to Listen To the Requiem Of the Winds Which Chant

OVER THE GRAVE OF

William Goebel and Consider That His Life Was as Dear to Him as Theirs."

Frankfort, Ky., April 18.—Governor Willson did not get to the hall of the House of Representatives for the Howard-Powers pardon hearing until nearly noon, being detained by a meeting of the Capitol Commission. Attorney S. M. Wilson, for the petitioners, concluded his argument late Wednesday afternoon, so it was expected that the Commonwealth would follow.

Commonwealth's Attorney Franklin said that Arthur Goebel desired to say a few things to the Governor.

Mr. Goebel said that he desired to protest against the pardon of Jim Howard and Caleb Powers. He referred to the efforts of the defense to protect Henry Youtsey in the first trial of Powers, and yet, after he had confessed to flood him with charges in the following ones. He denied that it had ever been the purpose of the Commonwealth to prosecute him.

All Should Have Hanged.

"It is a disgrace to the State that Youtsey has not been hanged, and also that the other two have not been hanged," Mr. Goebel spoke earnestly and freely without passion and with the ease of a practical speaker. He took up the testimony of the new witnesses introduced at the last trial of Powers, dissecting their evidence carefully with the skill of the most finished criminal attorney. The large crowd in the hall listened breathlessly to every word of the brother of the murdered man.

Mr. Goebel said that in reference to the testimony of Col. Scott, which had not been given and had been referred to by the defense attorneys, he had gone to Col. Scott after his (Scott's) conference with Youtsey and asked him directly and man to man if Youtsey had admitted that he had fired the shot that killed William Goebel. He said that Col. Scott told him that Youtsey told him that he did not.

Appeal to Governor.

Mr. Goebel closed his appeal to the Governor with a peroration so eloquent and pathetic that it brought tears to the eyes of many. He said: "I protest against the pardon of Jim Howard and Caleb Powers. I refer you to the record in their cases and all kindred cases. I ask you to make an analytical and comparative study of the evidence of every witness who has appeared at every trial, so that the capability and the interest of every witness to tell the truth may be judged."

"The best criterion is not what I or they may say, but the evidence itself. The record shows that Powers is as guilty as can be. The world knows he is guilty. For eight long years I have assisted the Commonwealth in this battle. I have done nothing that was not strictly in conformance with the law. I ask you to let the law take its course."

Not a Question of Mercy.

"There are those, many in number, and many have said it to me, that even though Powers is guilty he has suffered enough and should be pardoned. That is mercy. If this is to be a question of mercy, I ask you to listen to the requiem of the winds which chant over the grave of William Goebel and to consider that his life and liberty were as dear to him as theirs is to them."

There was silence throughout the hall for a half minute. Mr. Goebel turned and walked out. Governor Willson then called upon Mr. Franklin to present his argument for the Commonwealth.

Robert Franklin spoke against the granting of the pardons and W. C. Owens for Powers. The latter will conclude his speech to-day and Gov. Willson then will take the cases under advisement.

THE FIRST LETTER A Woman Writes.

THE FIRST LETTER that a sick woman should write or have some one write for her is to Dr. Pierce's Buffalo, N. Y., asking him if "FAVORITE PRESCRIPTION" is suitable for her case, and he will frankly tell her so if he thinks it is. He may have to ask some questions before he can be sure just what the trouble is. If you are suffering from uterine disease, the symptoms of which are leucorrhoea, backache, headache, pain in various parts of the body, especially in the pelvic region, bearing-down, inflammation, ulceration, then Dr. Pierce will advise you to use his "FAVORITE PRESCRIPTION" for he has had a wonderful experience in the use of this remedy. It is not a PATENT MEDICINE but it is a VERITABLE PRESCRIPTION that became his "favorite" when he was engaged in private practice forty years ago and found that it cured more than ninety-eight out of every hundred of all such cases that came under his care. The doctor found scores and hundreds of women who were being improperly treated because their troubles were not understood, and he determined to place this remedy that he had used so successfully within reach of the multitudes who were in such sore need of it. He made it efficient, agreeable to taste, and, best of all, safe for any woman, old or young, to use. It is neither a stimulant nor a sedative, just a vegetable tonic, and invigorating nerve, composed of native roots of remarkable medicinal virtue in the treatment of this class of diseases, and its record of cures makes it a full confidence.

The one medicine for the cure of woman's peculiar weaknesses and ailments, the ingredients of which are printed and placed upon every bottle leaving the great Laboratory in Buffalo, N. Y., where it is made, is called Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

It Stands Alone not only in its ingredients being known, but also as the only specific advertised remedy for woman's diseases which absolutely CONTAINS NO ALCOHOL.

It Stands Alone in the one women, the makers of which take their patients fully into their confidence and tell them exactly what they are taking. This Dr. Pierce can afford to do, because his FAVORITE PRESCRIPTION is made of such ingredients and after a working formula that has thousands of cures to its credit, placing its merits above criticism.

"I suffered with ovarian trouble for many months and was nearly dead when I was not in the least bettered by any other medicine. I wrote Miss Olive Linsler of Syracuse, N. Y., and she told me to try Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. I bought a bottle and after three months—from what I considered was a hopeless case—I was cured and I am now as well as I ever was. Life looks different to me now, and I shall never again feel the cruelty where it belongs—to Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription."

PANIC AVERTED.

The Principal Announced a Holiday.

St. Louis, April 18.—One thousand pupils were quickly and speedily dismissed from the Blair public school when fire was discovered on the first floor. The fire started near a steam heating coil in room 17. The teacher, Miss Catherine Lewis, sent word to Principal Herzog and dismissed her pupils. Principal Herzog quickly visited each room and announced a holiday. Joyously the pupils fled out and did not know about the fire until they were outside and saw the smoke pouring from the windows of room 17. The fire was soon extinguished.

FRIENDS INDIGNANT

Over Treatment of Tennessees Man by Kentucky Raiders.

Burns, Tenn., April 18.—Information has been received here that E. C. Reeder, whose home is at this place, and who travels for a Western, Ohio, firm, was detained by masked men near Princeton, Ky., late Wednesday evening, and after being questioned was searched and deprived of his personal belongings. Then his coat was removed, and he was severely whipped, the assailants declaring they would have killed him had he not been under age. It is supposed that the night riders believed that he was connected with the tobacco company, which caused them to punish him. Mr. Reeder is one of the best families at this place, and the report is causing no little indignation here. It is further stated that $200 will be offered by his brother, J. E. Reeder, of this place, for the apprehension of the guilty parties.

FARMERS' WIVES TELL WHAT THEY KNOW ABOUT PE-RU-NA.

Peruna Is Used in the Farmer's Home for all Sorts of Catarrhal Afflictions.

Mrs. Lenora Bodenhamer

Mrs. Magdalena Winkler

New Perfectly Healthy.

Mrs. Magdalena Winkler, Route 5, Westminster, Md., writes:

"I thank you very much for your advice. I can safely say that Peruna and Manalin have saved my life.

"When I wrote to you the first time, asking your advice, my condition was so poor that I did not expect to live through the winter.

but now I am perfectly healthy. "I cannot praise your medicine enough, and I recommend it to others."

Catarrh of Stomach.

Mrs. Mary Allen, Route 6, Franklin, Tenn., writes:

"I am glad to be able to tell you that I am well of catarrh of the stomach, for which I am sincerely thankful to you for your advice. If it had not been for Peruna I would never have been well.

"I had three physicians. One of them told my husband that he could not cure me.

"I had been sick about nine months when a friend asked me to try Peruna to gratify her; so I commenced taking it.

"I can eat and walk and work. Everybody says I look as well as I ever did.

"Oh, you don't know how thankful I do feel to you.

"I have got several other people to take Peruna. I praise it to everybody."

For Children's Colds.

Mrs. Henry Martin, La Motte, La., R. No. 1, writes:

"After suffering for some time with sore eyes I was advised by a friend to try Peruna, which I did at once.

"The first bottle relieved me, and after using four bottles I was entirely cured.

"I do recommend Peruna to all who are afflicted with catarrh. I have found it to be a great remedy also for coughs and colds of children; a dose at bedtime will relieve them from coughing all night. I always keep it on hand, and recommend it."

Catarrh for Seven Years.

Mrs. T. Frech, R. R. No. 1, Hickory Point, Tenn., writes:

"I am happy to tell you that I am cured of catarrh. I have followed your good and kind advice faithfully. I bless the day when I wrote you of my condition, and I will always praise Peruna. I think it is one of the greatest medicines on earth.

"Having been afflicted with catarrh and stomach trouble for seven years, and after having tried four different doctors they only relieved me for a little while. I gave up all hope of being cured. I only weighed one hundred and thirty pounds, and was so weak I could hardly get around the room.

"I was induced to try Peruna, and to my great surprise I am now entirely well. My weight is now one hundred and eighty-eight pounds, my health never was better in my life. I shall always praise Dr. Hartman and his remedies."

Mrs. Henry Martin

Mrs. Anna Linder

The Farmer's Wife.

Who is in a better position to know than the farmer's wife herself what is required in the farmer's home? She must meet its troubles, solve its problems, ward off disease, nurse the sick, she must do all these things herself, and she learns by valuable experience what is best and what is not best.

In numerous farm homes Peruna is relied upon as the family medicine. Peruna books are consulted in health and disease. Peruna is used as a preventive as well as a corrective in disease.

The wives of the farmers of the United States constitute a solid phalanx in favor of Peruna. Against this testimony the slanders of a few critics will not prevail. One sensible mistress of a farm home who has used Peruna knows more about Peruna than all the magazine critics in the world.

Peruna in Her Home.

Mrs. Anna Linder, R. F. D. No. 5, Dassel, Meeker Co., Minn., writes:

"For two years I suffered with that terrible disease, chronic catarrh.

"Fortunately I saw your advertisement in my paper and I spoke to my sister about your medicine. She wrote to you and I got your advice free of charge. I took Peruna and am well and a mother of two children.

"I owe it all to Peruna. I would not be without that great tonic for ten times its cost, for I am well and strong now, and cannot speak in too high terms of its value as a medicine."

In a letter dated June 12, 1926, Mrs. Linder writes: "I cannot express my thanks enough to you for all the good your medicine has done for me and my family."

This spring I took cold and it settled in my kidneys. At first I thought it was kidney trouble.

"I took Peruna as directed on the bottle and in a few days I was all right, so I owe my health to Dr. Hartman and his remedy."

Mrs. Hattie Green, R. R. 6, Iuka, Miss.

writes: "Last November I had catarrh, and felt so miserable, I thought that I would go into consumption."

"I tried so many doctors and medicines, but nothing did me any good, only Peruna."

"After I began the use of Peruna I began to improve in every way."

"My head does not hurt so much, my stomach is all right, my bowels are regular, my appetite good, my complexion clear, my eyes are bright, and I am gaining in flesh and strength."

"I think Peruna has no equal as a catarrh remedy."

MORE ARRESTS IN CALLOWAY

The Calloway Grand Jury at Last Finds the Missing Witness.

ANOTHER LEADER IS Captured Going In The Direction of the Tennessee River.

Murray, Ky., April 22.—Murray Harris, the night rider, who confessed and implicated prominent men in the band operating in the west side of Calloway county, was captured at his home by Constable Clint Drinkard and taken to Murray to appear before the grand jury. His testimony was almost essential to the success of the prosecution against the band in the Kirksey section, and threats of vengeance had impelled his own family to send him into exile. His home has been watched and the constable arrested him. He will not be allowed to leave the custody of the law until the prosecutions are over.

The arrest last night of Kelsie Kirk on Tennessee river on three charges of night riding was one of the most gratifying since the Calloway county grand jury first reported. Kelsie, who is a daring young fellow, was one of the first indicted, but he had fled to Trigg county, and was hard to find. His arrest by Robert Lasiter, a special deputy, also shows how well organized the forces of the county are under Judge Wells, Sheriff Edwards and Major Albrecht. Lasiter is one of the men patrolling the river, and he was to report when Kelsie Kirk had crossed into Calloway. Lasiter made the arrest himself at Callowaytown just as Kelsie was preparing to cross back into Trigg county. He had been visiting home folks. He was locked up in default of bond.

Kelsie Kirk is considered one of the most active members of the east side band. It is charged that he has participated in forcing a number to take the oath of allegiance to the night riders, and seldom failed when something was doing on the pike at night. He was at one time a street car motorman in Paducah and is well known in Calloway county and those adjoining.

Elmus Williams appeared in Murray and gave bond.

The fifty-two indictments returned are against thirty-three men, all members of the East Side band. It is understood that the leaders of that aggregation are all indicted, and the grand jury is now engaged in the cases of the west side.

The manner in which people who talk too much are spotted and men wanted are located for the soldiers to go after is gaining credence for the suspicion that a considerable percent of the men in khaki are really secret service men.

ONLY IN FUN.

Two Young Men Admit That They Left Switches at Robt. Bronaugh's.

The bundles of switches to which threatening notes were attached, which were left on the porch at the residence of Robt. Bronaugh Saturday night, it has turned out were not the work of night riders. Edmund Fowler and a young man named Kennedy confessed to Mr. Bronaugh Monday that they put the switches there as a joke on Mrs. Bronaugh, who played an April fool joke on them April 1st. The authorities were making a vigorous investigation of the affair and in order to stop this the young men confessed. Fowler lives with Mr. Bronaugh.

This disposes of the only outrage that has occurred in Christian county since Feb. 28. Let us hope that all future ones will prove to be as harmless. It would be well enough, however, for everybody to realize that this is no time for such foolish-

DEMAND RESIGNATIONS.

Night Riders Go After Robertson Magistrates.

Carlisle, Ky., April 20.—Night riders waited upon Magistrates O. P. Overly and Reuben Dotman, of Robertson county, and requested them to resign at once, and they have done so. These magistrates had refused to vote for an appropriation for a new turnpike in the county. Magistrate Bradley has his intention of resigning before being asked to.

The night riders also requested Road Supervisor Bruce Massey to resign his office, which he immediately did, which will leave the county without any magisterial government until others can be commissioned by the Governor.

CITIZENS ON GUARD

In Lyon County Now That Soldiers Have Left.

Kuttawa, Ky., April 20.—Since the call of the soldiers from Eddyville to Murray to offset the expected raid on that city Saturday night by the night riders, several citizens in different parts of the county have taken up the patrol work of the soldiers, and at night have been traveling about in various directions, sufficiently armed, it is believed, to protect themselves and to suppress any raid. While everything seems quiet in the county at present, the people are more or less uneasy, as there might be an outbreak at any time, since no one has been arrested for being in any raid in this county.

D. Z. Nicholas, a Larue county grower, received a warning Tuesday that he must not raise any more tobacco. He secured bloodhounds and is attempting to track the men who left the warning.

Gen. Roger Williams will be sent to Western Kentucky to take command of the State troops there. He held a conference with Gov. Willson, at which the night rider situation was thoroughly canvassed.

Eighty-nine citizens of the Kirksey neighborhood in Calloway county have published a card in the Murray Times publicly pledging their support to Judge Wells in his fight against night riding. The Times is doing good work on the side of law and the good people of Calloway, like the good people of Christian, are determined to put down lawlessness in every form.

Forty citizens, reported as night riders, have warned two magistrates and also road supervisor of Robertson county to resign on account of a failure to make certain roads.

Begins Seventeenth Continental Congress.

Washington, April 20.—The seventeenth Continental Congress of the American Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution convened here today in Memorial Continental Hall, with an unusually large attendance. The congress will be in session for six days.

As this is an "off year," the exciting scenes incident to the election of a head for the organization will not be gone through with. The selection of ten vice presidents-general and the discussion of proposed amendments to the constitution will, however, afford considerable interest for the delegates.

Among the vice presidents-general whose terms of office expire this year and whose places are to be filled are Mrs. Robert Emory Park, Georgia; Mrs. Sally Marshall Hardy, Kentucky; Mrs. Ira H. Evans, Texas; and Mrs. A. E. Heneberger, Virginia.

A number of social functions will be given in honor of the daughters during the week. On Thursday President Roosevelt will receive them at the White House.

UNION MINERS' LEADER KILLED

Jas. D. Wood Meets Death In a Desperate Street Duel.

HIS BROTHER WOUNDED

They Fought With Three Former Policemen of Central City.

Central City, Ky., April 22.—Jas. D. Wood, for many years president of District 23, United Mine Workers of America, was shot and instantly killed last night in a fight in which his brother, John Wood, and John H. Magan, a former policeman, were also wounded.

The fight occurred on the platform of the Illinois Central railroad station and grew out of political troubles between the Woods and three former policemen who were recently let out of the city's service, largely through the influence of James D. Wood, who was a member of the board of councilmen.

Twenty Shots Fired.

Nearly twenty shots were fired. The two Woods on one side and Jas. Jenkins, former chief of police, and Walter Hardwick and Magan, both formerly members of the police force, on the other. The five men met on the platform and are said to have quarreled violently for some minutes before the shooting began. Who first drew a weapon is not known, but after the first shot, nearly every man in the party emptied his revolver.

James Wood was shot once in the neck and a second time in the heart, the bullet causing instant death. John Wood was twice wounded, one ball entering the stomach and a second lodging in his arm, but it is believed that he will recover. Magan was shot in the leg, but the wound is not serious. The other two men were not wounded.

Prominent in Union Circles.

James D. Wood was for many years the head of the union miners' organization of Kentucky and also took a prominent part in the general union labor movement throughout the State. He was a forceful, energetic leader and displayed much ability in enlarging the membership of the union and in obtaining favorable contracts from the mine owners. Several years ago he was defeated for election as the president of District 23 and since then had lived quietly at his home in this city. He was married and leaves several children.

The shooting created tremendous excitement in Central City, where all of the participants have been in the public eye for some time.

Woman's Home Companion for May.

Herman Pfeiffer's beautiful prize cover gives much distinction to the May Woman's Home Companion. Another notable art feature of this magazine is a full-page reproduction of William Balfour Ker's painting, "Memories." An aged Civil War veteran is carrying his company's colors in a Decoration Day parade, his eyes almost closed in reverie. Behind him crowd the vague, shadowy forms of the gallant youths who followed the colors with him nearly half a century ago.

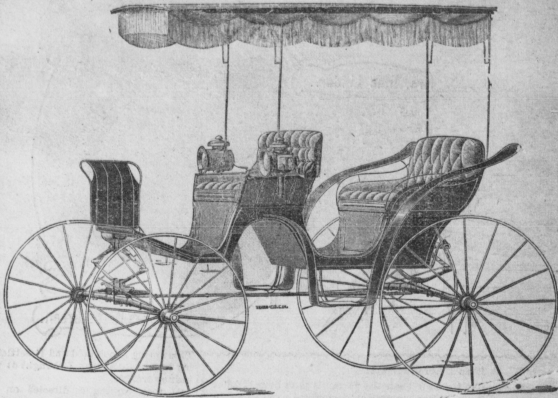

Dr. Edward Everett Hale gives some good advice to young married folk. In "Are We Ready for Our Children?" Christine Terhune Herriek approaches the problem of the child in the family from an actually new point of view. "Europe on Five Dollars a Day" is the first of a series of articles on the best way to travel abroad. Every person who is married or hopes to marry will enjoy greatly the hot discussion on the marriage question, under the title "Is There a Panic in the Marriage Market?"

Hastening to the scene Sheriff Bryan found that Hendricks had become violent, and seizing an ax had attempted to crush his own skull. This is the unfortunate man's second attempt at suicide, the first having been made here several months ago, after he had been legally pronounced insane. The means then employed was a pocket knife. SEVENTEEN CONVERSIONS

And Great Crowds Continue to Attend the Baptist Revival.

SOME FINE SERMONS.

Evangelist Neighbour a Ferocious Pulpit Orator Who Pleases Immensely.

Rev. R. E. Neighbour is proving to be one of the best preachers who has been in Hopkinsville for years. His sermons twice a day at the Baptist church are models of their kind and the crowds at night continue to tax the capacity of the church. He preached on the dance of Salome before Herod Tuesday night and the discourse was one of the best of the series. At its conclusion there were about a dozen conversions. So far 13 have joined the Baptist church, one the Christian church and Tuesday night two announced that they would join the Presbyterian and one the Methodist church. The meeting is growing in interest every day. The great trouble is that the church will not hold the crowds and many young men who are apparently interested are unable to obtain seats in the building. Dr. Neighbour is an evangelist of rare power and persuasive eloquence and earnestness.

The singer, Mr. Ruby, supported by a fine chorus, is giving much satisfaction as musical director, and is introducing some very beautiful new songs.

The meeting will go ahead as heretofore, with services at 10 a. m. and 7:30 p. m.

Kimball Co., the largest manufacturers of pianos in the world, desiring to impress the name, "Kimball," indelibly upon the minds of all who may now or at some future time need a piano, makes this great offer.

It is the custom these days with many manufacturers to spend large sums yearly in expensive magazine advertising. The Kimball Company prefer to advertise their pianos in a more direct way, going straight to the people and offering these awards. The advertising results are thus obtained for the Kimball piano, and the people benefit to the extent of thousands of dollars. The W. W. Kimball Company was one of the first to establish the cost-price system. Kimball pianos are sold the world over at a uniform price. They are always marked in plain figures at their lowest selling price. Purchasers of Kimball pianos always have the assurance that they get value received, their dollar going just as far as any others. They are also assured of a genuine reduction to the full amount their certificates may call for. Kimball pianos are sold on the easy payment plan if so desired.
